

NEWS

➤ Capacity building grants available for Chesapeake watershed groups
Upcoming events in Lancaster County ➤

FOLLOW US!

Your help needed to preserve historical stream markers

0

Posted on October 10, 2011 in partners

West Face before and after

Have you seen an old, faded, rusted sign marking a river crossing in your town? Keystone Marker Trust wants to hear from you!

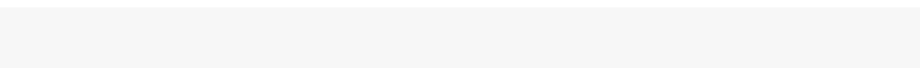

These historic cast iron markers were put up along Pennsylvania's roads by the former PA Department of Highways beginning in the 1920's. Similar signs were also used to mark town boundaries.

While these signs belong to PennDOT today, the agency has too much on its plate to manage this little piece of our state's heritage. Today Keystone Marker Trust is working with PennDOT and local sponsors to restore these signs.

Of the 700+ signs that are known to still be in existence, only 30 are stream markers. There are likely others out there. Keystone Marker Trust would like your help to locate these signs and your assistance to fix them up. From looking at their list, I think I know of at least one out there that they don't know about, and now I'll be sure to keep my eyes peeled for more as I travel around the state.

Visit the Keystone Marker Trust website for more information.

Welcome to POWR

Thanks for visiting us, and please feel free to join the discussion by leaving comments on our articles. You can also stay current by subscribing to the RSS feed and receive articles in your email inbox.

DONATE NOW!

Your support helps us to continue our work of protecting PA's rivers and streams. Contribute today!

JOIN OUR MAILING LIST

Enter your email address to receive occasional updates about important issues.

Privacy by SafeSubscribe<sup>SM</sup>

RECENT NEWS

Use Heritage Grants to fund your watershed project!

Grants available for riparian buffers in SEPA

Grant Opportunity: Urban Waters Small Grants

Chesapeake Bay Restoration event: Dec 8 in Chadd's Ford